This book is dedicated to my lovely and talented wife, Nancy Sirianni, who has had these jokes coming at her a million different ways since 1974, still manages to laugh at them, and has not physically abused me yet. I love you, and I hope we're still married by the time someone reads this.

also …

A big hunk of warm must go out to my dear departed chum, Jake LeGrange, the Dutch salad man at Piping Rock Country Club where I was head busboy. For four years, I told him jokes nonstop, and he was absolutely unamused. It forced me to laugh at the jokes myself and develop the lunatic giggle that people know me by today.

Acknowledgments

I would like to thank my manager, Rory Rosegarten, for everything he keeps promising to do for me. I of course am indebted to Howard Stern for writing the foreword to this literary abomination, and for making me what I am today, a guy who writes joke books to pay his mortgage. And I lovingly thank my wife, Nancy Sirianni (ten years!), for all her unwavering support for as long as I can remember.

I especially want to thank my parents, John and Dot, for the special combination of what they did and didn't do that made me the kind of guy who not only remembers every filthy joke, story, idea, rhyme, or saying he ever heard in his entire life, but has an unbridled obsession to share them with every human being he can, whether he's telling them at the bar or launching them into Cyberspace. And much love to my sister Katie Dunn, who somehow endured the entire process and came through relatively unscathed. Lots of big hugs to Eileen Sidor, the Off Hour Rockers Inc. office manager/marriage counselor … please don't ever tell anyone what I'm really like. And yes, you too, Johnny Collis.

I love Chris Bates for teaching me guitar in ninth grade so we could get laid and sneak into show business. Love to Bob Burford and Vinnie DiNapoli just for being my pals. I appreciate Robin Quivers, Fred Norris, Gary Dell' Abate, Stuttering John Melendez, and Scott Salem, from the world's greatest radio show, for listening to my crap since 1983, and I must aim a big wad of appreciation at K-Rock and CBS Radio and The E! Channel for that steady paycheck. And wet smooches to Penthouse magazine for featuring my monthly "Joke Page" among nude babes since 1990.

I want to thank my editor, Irish Todd, and my book designer, Bonni Leon. They both drew short straws and got to work on my project. And Cherise Grant, my paperback editor, who was recently tossed this hot potato. A flipped bird must be aimed at my cover photographer, Brian Smale, who took such perverse delight in sticking real bars of soap into my mouth for two hours. I would thank my lawyers, Larry Shire and Mark Steverson, but I'm afraid I'd be billed for the time it would take them to read this fucking acknowledgment. Many thanks to Nerdland's Barry Jay and Lynn Harold for seeing to it that I occasionally had a functioning computer. I'd thank my limo driver if I had one.

Last but not least, thanks to anyone who ever went to any of my live shows, called (516) 922-WINE for free dirty jokes, bought some of our JokeLand products, loaded my Joke Button CD-ROM, or visited www.jokeland.com. I hope you enjoy the jokes … it's taken well over forty wild, soggy, and silly years to accumulate them.

Guess what? I won. No, not the lottery. I won the honor of writing the foreword to Jackie Martling's joke book. I must have an angel watching over me. In addition to having an undersized manhood, and a nose the size of a watermelon, I got chosen to write a piece on Jackie "The Joke Man" Martling.

You would think that the man chosen to write the foreword would know something about the contents of this book, but I really don't. Usually when you write a foreword they give you an advance copy and let you get familiar with the material. Jackie never gave me much information He just grabbed ahold of me after the radio show a few months ago and mumbled something about book deal, the biggest break of his life, and the foreword … would you write it? I don't think he really wanted me to write this foreword, but the book company (Simon & Schuster) probably pressured him to somehow get me involved. It's called hedging their bet. They figure if you don't give a shit about Jackie, maybe you'll give a damn about my stupid intro. What morons these guys in publishing are. Like you're going to be stupid enough to buy this whole book just for a few measly pages from me. Any asshole with half a brain knows you can just stand in the bookstore and read my intro and then put the book back on the shelf. I read in the New York Post that Simon & Schuster paid Jackie five hundred thousand dollars for this book. If that is the case, they must be shitting in their collective pants and pressuring the bejesus out of Jackie to get me to write the stupid foreword. All I can tell you is that if Simon & Schuster paid him that much, then both Simon and his stupid partner Schuster should have their fucking heads examined. I've seen Jackie write joke books for pennies just so he could see his name on the cover of something. All I can say is Jackie sure saw these guys coming. Somebody better call the rape crisis center because I think Mr. Simon and Mr. Schuster just got bent over a chair and boned by an overweight wise guy. Personally, I refuse to believe that Jackie got anywhere close to that amount of money. It's the only way I'm going to be able to sleep at night.

Anyway, my guess is that the book is mostly wacky riddles and limericks or something. Jackie's whole life is wacky riddles and limericks. To tell you the truth, I don't care what the book is because chances are I'll be too busy to read it. Jackie has already written ten million joke books filled with riddles and limericks that I never read, and like all of Jackie's sad business stories they never sold, or they sold and the book company went bankrupt and screwed him out of his money.

Most people would be complimented to be asked to write the foreword to a book, but me, I'm annoyed. First of all, I hate writing. I especially hate writing when I'm not getting paid. Second, I hate when Jackie asks me to do something, because I really don't have the option of saying no. If I say no, he will pout and moan, and since he is my head writer he will probably take revenge on me and keep his best jokes to himself. Then his beautiful but annoying wife will fill Jackie's head with negative thoughts about me. In a sense, there's a gun to my head, so I just better do this and quit my bitching.

Usually when you write a foreword to someone's book you are very close to that person and you are most likely his or her best friend. I am not Jackie's best friend and I am certainly not close to him. In this case I am being given the honor of writing this foreword because I'm the most famous person that has met Jackie that is still willing to talk to him. Jackie knows Rodney Dangerfield, but Rodney no longer likes Jackie because Jackie owes Rodney two thousand dollars and refuses to pay back the loan. To call Jackie a welcher would be an understatement. As Jackie always says to me, "Hey, Rodney's got plenty of dough. What's he need with my lousy two grand?"

Jackie was friends with Eddie Murphy for ten minutes. Before Eddie Murphy got famous, he tried to befriend Jackie, but Jackie figured it was a good idea to blow off Eddie's friendship because "where the hell is this black kid going anyway? He can't do anything for me." So, here I am, the biggest celebrity in Jackie's life. My luck. I get to write the foreword when I could be outside by my pool on this beautiful June afternoon.

Now, don't let me mislead you. I love the Joke Man and I wish him well. I mean it. He's the funniest fucking guy and a hell of a lot of fun. We work together every day and have the best working relationship and chemistry a diss jockey and a joke man could ask for. The man can make me laugh, and he told me one of the sickest jokes I ever heard in my life. Jackie knows ten billion jokes. People tell me jokes all day and I can't remember any of them except for one that Jackie told me. Here it is:

A child molester is walking down the street with a young child, heading for the woods. The little boy says, “I’m afraid. It’s dark, and I’m really scared.” The child molester gives the little boy a disgusted look and says, “How do you think I feel? I have to walk home alone.”

Now how can you not love a guy who tells you total garbage like that? Brilliant! Sick, but brilliant! Those words describe the Joke Man perfectly. Sick, brilliant. And, oh yes … charming. Jackie is charming. He’s done incredibly charming things. Like having sex with amputees, shitting out of car windows, and he even pissed in his mother’s face while he was trying to urinate in a beer bottle. Better yet, his grandmother caught him jerking off in the snow. I love that. The man has lived. The man has had life experience and I admire that. But that’s all I know about the legendary Joke Man, the big outrageous stories. I realize sitting here that I don’t know the small, intimate details of his life. Our relationship is so shallow that we never really communicate. I mean, every day I sit across from that lovable, wrinkled, weathered face that looks so much older than its forty-nine years, and I know so little about him. Does Jackie believe in God? Does Jackie read books? Does Jackie drink anything besides Bloody Marys? I mean, what the fuck is Jackie’s favorite TV show? And has Jackie ever stuck his penis inside a prostitute’s disease-ridden pussy? My God, I don’t know the answers. I just don’t know.

Sure, I’ve visited his home and spent time with his sexy, horny wife, Nancy, but how well do I really know him? Walking through his abode and looking over his possessions didn’t really tell me all that much about the man. Sure, I thought it was peculiar and incredibly vain that Jackie had hundreds of pictures of himself hanging on the walls of his dilapidated house, and I must admit it was rather disturbing seeing the stack of books his wife had lying around with titles like How to Live with an Alcoholic. I mean, what does that tell you about a guy? What, he likes a few cocktails? So the guy has a drinking problem and his wife can’t deal with it. Jeez, that’s just superficial stuff.

It’s odd that I don’t know that much about Jackie. What kind of man am I that I don’t know squat about a guy who has written me some of my best material? I mean, sure I know that he has a horrible affliction on his feet called ten nail syndrome that left him with a yellowing, rotting fungus on his toenails that eventually led to all his nails being removed by a doctor that Jackie found in the Pennysaver, a free newspaper. Let’s face it, that story alone tells you something about a guy. But it’s just tip-of-the-iceberg stuff. Sure, I know a few stories about Jackie, like when he slept over some guy’s house and he used the dude’s toothbrush and thought that was perfectly fine, even though that toothbrush could have been covered in some kind of horrible infectious disease. He considered that normal behavior. You know what? You’ll have to excuse me for a second, because I think I have to go throw up.

All right, I'm better now. Look, aside from Jackie's disgusting personal hygiene, I realized how little I knew about the Joke Man, and I decided to do a little research in an attempt to learn something about him. Here's everything I know after hours of exhaustive detective work. I worked hard on getting to know Jackie, and I really dug deep to find out the whole story. Maybe it's important to know something about Jackie, but most likely there is absolutely no good reason to know anything about Jackie. But I've got to write something.

So here goes … everything you want to know about Jackie.

John Coger (what's a Coger?) Martling, Jr., was born in Mineola, Long Island, a suburb of New York City, on February 14, 1948. Valentine's Day. He stands five feet seven and one-half inches tall and weighs 190 pounds. He comes from a long line of Republicans but is a registered Democrat, and he voted for both Clinton and Bush in previous elections. Jackie is a Methodist. Funny, but it never occurred to me that Jackie would be the slightest bit religious or hopeful of ever going to heaven after his history of screwing one-legged women and fat chicks only to dump them without explanation the next day. Jackie's held lots of jobs. He's worked as a caddie, a head busboy, a short-order cook, and a concrete form setter, and he managed a recording studio before starting a rock band and eventually becoming a stand-up comic.

His favorite films · My Favorite Year and The Godfather (I and II).

Favorite book · Slaughterhouse-Five. I know, that took me by surprise as well.

Out of all the celebrities we've ever had on the show, Jackie was most excited to meet Mickey Mantle. He thinks Pat Cooper is the funniest guest, and was most moved by the live in-studio performances of James Taylor.

You would think that Jackie was a man of taste based on some of this information, but don't be fooled. It's Jackie's favorite song that disturbs me most. The brilliance of Hendrix, Zeppelin, and the Beatles is all wasted on the Martling eardrums, because Jackie thinks that something called "The Dutchman," written by some guy named Mike Smith and recorded by Steve Goodman, is the best song ever written. Now, that would probably explain why Jackie is a failed musician, and a song that he wrote, "The Pot Song," went straight to the bottom of the charts. Jackie's other song was a lot less frivolous. It was called "Cold Gold," and it was about his love of beer. Pretty heavy stuff. Starting to get a fuller picture of the author of this book? It ain't pretty, is it? It's goddamned sad is what it is, I'll tell you.

And who knew that Jackie had a nickname? Which of these would you guess is his?

1. Fuckface
2. Jewboy
3. The Chief

Well, if you said (C), the Chief, you'd be correct. The Chief? The Chief of what? Bayville, Long Island? Good grief.

Are you starting to know Jackie? Are you feeling closer to him? Or are you like me and you just realized that none of this information is useful or relevant?

Okay, so for those of you who are diehard fans of Jackie "the Joke Man," I'll quiz you some more.

Who in history would Jackie most like to meet?

1. Martin Luther King, Jr.
2. Lenny Bruce
3. Robert F. Kennedy
4. Percy Martling

Well, the pathetic answer is (D). Some loser named Percy Martling, whose only contribution to greatness was providing the sperm to produce Jackie's father.

Try another one.

Jackie was arrested for which offense?

1. Insufficient money for a speeding ticket in 1965
2. Drunk and disorderly in 1967
3. Caught with stolen goods in 1969
4. Driving while intoxicated in 1987
5. All of the above

Too easy, right? Of course it's (E), all of the above. God, that's depressing. Anybody feel like returning this book right now?

Look, the more I learn, the more disgusted I get, so let me wrap this up. Jackie likes blondes, if he could fuck one celebrity it would be Michelle Pfeiffer, and he drives a '93 Volvo station wagon. A Michigan State University grad with a degree in mechanical engineering, he has an IQ around 125, gets high two to three times a week, is pro-abortion, pro—death penalty (although he thinks it's barbaric), hates clothes shopping, and says his most charitable act was adopting a cat with cerebral palsy named Timmy. He's happiest swimming in Long Island Sound, likes Letterman better than Leno, doesn't care about the David Lee Roth/Sammy Hagar controversy, and sleeps on his side with his asshole facing his wife. He wrote this book on a Pentium 166 using WordPerfect for Windows '95, claims his longest sex session occurred when he screwed a woman thirteen times in two days, is for school prayer (where the hell did that come from?), and ate lamb stew from our sponsor "the Soup Man" for breakfast this morning. His Jokeness prefers a neatly trimmed bush, scored 500 in English and 650 in math on his SATs, thinks Kevin Kelly, his former boss at the recording studio, is the smartest person he knows (even though it's really me and it pains him to admit it because he's so competitive), says a girl named Mary Zabelle, whom he never had sex with, is the sexiest woman he ever met besides his wife, and thinks Ronald Reagan, Louis Farrakhan, and Ted Kennedy are all assholes. Oh, and by the way—I didn't mean to keep you in suspense—the man drinks something besides Bloody Marys. It's Diet Coke. And he has put his penis inside the mouth of a prostitute (Juarez, Mexico, 1975).

There it is. That's everything I learned. And now, I leave it to you to decide what good my research has done. To quote that giant squid head Paul Harvey, "Now you know the rest of the story." So it is with great pleasure that I invite you to read a book by a whore-loving, dope-taking convict who loves the comedy of Red Skelton, Rodney Dangerfield, Johnny Carson, Redd Foxx, and the Marx Brothers. Sit back, relax, and enjoy the great comedy rhythms of a man who considers himself a gentle hippie, who wouldn't harm a fly, who claims that his most attractive feature is his ass, a hell of a great guy and friend, the Chief of God knows what, Jackie "the Joke Man" Martling.

Schmidlap is in a bus station men's room, and he has to take a dump. Now, I don't mean he's feeling rumblings in his stomach. I mean, he's got to go. He really has to pinch a loaf. The turtle is poking its head out and touching cotton. The corn is ready to ride the rocket.

He looks in the only stall, and there's not even a ring, just the bowl, with no ring on top. But he has to squeeze a weasel so bad, he doesn't care. So he's sitting on the bowl, and he's making a nice Carvel, when he looks and sees that there's no toilet paper. Now, who'd ever guess that a bus station bathroom with only one stall without a ring would have no paper? But it's too late, he's already laying cable. And he can't suck it back in, because it's already winding its way around the bowl.

He doesn't know what he's going to do, when he looks at the side of the stall and sees a little hole. Above it, it says, "Insert and finger will be cleaned by human lips."

He says, "Thank God."

He gets done, he wipes his ass with his finger, and then sticks it in the hole. A guy on the other side smashes! it with a hammer.

Schmidlap goes "Oww!," yanks out his finger, sticks it in his mouth, and goes, "Mmmm."

How can you get a woman to make a sound like a dolphin?

Flip her over and try to fuck her in the ass.

She'll go, "Eh—eh … eh-eh …"

The madam of a whorehouse is doing a bang-up business, so she decides to divide her reception area in half so she'll have another bedroom.

A carpenter puts up a wall, and then tells her, "That'll be fifteen hundred bucks, Miss."

She takes him by the hand, leads him into the new bedroom, takes off all of her clothes, and lies on the floor.

She says, "I don't have any cash, so I thought you might like to take it out in trade."

He gets down on the floor next to her, he puts his middle finger in her asshole and his thumb in her snatch and says, "All right, lady, give me my fifteen hundred bucks or I'm gonna rip out the partition."

Why did Disney World fail in Japan?

Nobody was tall enough to go on the good rides.

Collis walks into a store.

He says to the salesgirl, “I want to buy some toilet paper.”

She says, “What color?”

He says, “Give me white. I’ll color it myself.”

What’s the difference between making love to a girl with arms and making love to a girl without arms?

If you’re making love to a girl without arms and it pops out, you have to put it back in.

Burford is going to the world’s best whorehouse at 448 West Forty-eighth Street in Manhattan. He has a few beers, and by accident, he goes to 884 West Eighty-fourth Street, and it’s a podiatrist’s office.

He walks in and the nurse says, “Go behind the curtain and stick it out through the hole.”

He does it.

She goes, “Ahhh! That’s not a foot.”

He says, “I didn’t know there was a minimum.”

Why is it so hard for a woman to take a piss in the morning?

Did you ever try to peel apart a grilled cheese?

What’s the difference between mayonnaise and sperm?

Mayonnaise doesn’t hit the back of a girl’s throat at thirty miles an hour.

There’s a drunk at one end of a bar, and a woman in a tight low-cut dress at the other end of the bar. The woman is waving feverishly for the bartender, and she has an incredibly hairy armpit.

The drunk yells out, “Give me a drink, and give a drink to the ballerina at the other end.”

The bartender says, “How do you know she’s a ballerina?”

The drunk says, “Who else could get her leg up that high?”

It’s Robin’s first time at the gynecologist. She’s up in the stirrups, and she’s scared to death.

The gynecologist says, “You’re nervous, aren’t you?”

She says, “Yes. It’s my first time at the gynecologist.”

He says, “Would you like me to numb you down there?”

She says, “Please.”

He sticks his nose in her twat and goes, “Num, num, num, num …”

A lady’s walking down the street.

A guy says, “Hey, lady, there’s a tampon hanging out of your mouth.”

She says, “Fuck. What’d I do with my cigarette?”

A little kid comes running into the backyard.

He says, “Pop! Pop! Ma just got hit by a bus!”

His father says, “Son, you know my lips are chapped. Please don’t make me smile.”

Confucius say:

Schoolboy who fool around with schoolgirl during wrong period get caught red-handed.

Cathy hears that the local drugstore now features a mind-reading druggist, and she can’t believe it. She goes down to the store, and there’s a sign, right in the window, “Mind-Reading Druggist.”

She walks in, and the druggist says to her, “You’re here for suppositories.”

She says, “Nope. I’m here for tampons.”

He says, “How much did I miss by?”

Harris has a sore ass, so he goes to a proctologist.

The doctor examines him and says, “My God, how did your asshole get so stretched out?”

Harris says, “I got fucked by an elephant.”

The doctor says, “Oh, come on, everybody knows elephants’ dicks are long, but they’re not that wide.”

Harris says, “He stuck his finger in first.”

How can you tell if two lesbians are twins?

They lick alike.

Little old Mr. Ravelli is on his front stoop barbecuing a chicken on a manual rotisserie when a hippie comes walking along.

The hippie says, “Hey man … the music stopped, and your monkey’s on fire.”

Three ladies are in an obstetrician’s waiting room.

The first lady says, “I’m going to have a girl, because I was on the bottom when we did it.”

The second lady says, “I’m going to have a boy, because I was on the top when we did it.”

The third lady says, “Fuck. I guess I’m gonna have a puppy.”

Did you hear about Tempura House?

It’s a shelter for lightly battered women.

A cab driver picks up a nun.

He looks in the rearview mirror and says, “You know. Sister, I’ve always fantasized about being with a nun.”

She says, “Yeah, you and everybody else. Are you Catholic?”

He says, “Yes, I am.”

She says, “Pull over.”

He pulls over, she gets in the front seat, and she gives him the best blow job he’s ever had.

When she gets done, he feels a little guilty, and he says to her, “Sister, I have to tell you something. I’m not really Catholic.”

She says, “Oh, yeah? Well, my name’s Ralph, and I’m on my way to a costume party.”

Why does a dog lick his ass?

Because he knows in five minutes he’ll be licking your face.

Clooney and Riether are in a bar getting drunk.

Clooney says, “You know why I drink so much? Because my wife is so ugly.”

Riether says, “Yeah? You think your wife’s ugly? You should see my wife. She’s a pig.”

They keep drinking and arguing about who’s wife is uglier, finally realizing the only way they’re going to settle it is to see both of the women. So they go to Clooney’s house, knock on the door, and his wife answers.

Riether says, “Sheesh, you got a point there. She’s a show stopper. That face could send a train down a dirt road. But we still gotta see my wife.”

When they get to Riether’s house, they go into the living room, he pushes the couch, the chairs, and the table up against the wall, and then rolls up the rug. In the middle of the floor is a huge trap door.

He lifts it open and yells down, “Hey, Gertie! Come on up here!”

She says, “All right. Should I put the bag over my head?”

He says, “No, I don’t want to fuck you. I just want to show you off.”

Perna is boffing his old lady on the tile floor in the bathroom, right on the tile floor, he's boffing her ?

He says, "Spread your legs! Spread your legs! Wider! Wider!"

She says, "What are you trying to do? Get your balls in?"

He says, "I'm trying to get 'em out."

A teenage girl says to her father, "Daddy, I need a new dress for the prom."

He says, "You gotta give me a blow job."

She kneels down in front of him and puts his cock in her mouth.

She says, "Daddy, your dick tastes like shit."

He says, "Your brother had to rent a tuxedo."

A middle-aged divorcée wants to sleep with a black guy, she's dying to sleep with a black guy.

She goes to a bar, has a few drinks, meets a black guy, brings him home, brings him in the bedroom, takes off all her clothes, lies on the bed, spreads her legs, and says, "All right, pal, do what you do best."

So he grabs her TV and runs out the door.

What's the difference between looking for a lost golf ball

Looking for a lost golf ball is a hunt on a course.

Zuker is walking along the beach when he trips over a bottle and a genie comes out.

The genie says, "Oh, thank you. I've been stuck in that bottle for centuries. I'll tell you what … I'll give you one wish. Anything you want."

Zuker pulls out a map of the Middle East, and he says, "Could you bring peace to this part of the world?"

The genie says, "Gee, I don't know. They were fighting there hundreds of years before I was even trapped in the bottle. Have you got another wish?"

Zuker says, "Well … could you make it so once a month my wife voluntarily gives me a blow job?"

The genie says, "Let me see that map again."

Why didn't Hitler drink vodka?

It made him mean.

How do you make a Jewish girl scream twice?

You fuck her in the ass and then wipe your dick on the Mitchell's working at the lumberyard, pushing a tree through the buzz saw, and accidentally shears off all ten of his fingers. He goes to the emergency room.

The doctor says, "Yuck! Well, give me the fingers, and I'll see what I can do."

Mitchell says, "I haven't got the fingers."

The doctor says, "What do you mean, you haven't got the fingers? It's 1997. We've got microsurgery and all kinds of incredible techniques. I could have put them back on and made you like new. Why didn't you bring the fingers?"

Mitchell says, "Well, shit, Doc, I couldn't pick 'em up."

A Chinese couple's in bed.

The husband says, "I want-a sixty-nine."

His wife says, "Why you want beef and broccoli now?"

A Safe Distance from Genius

The year is 1958, and the ring announcer says, “Good evening, ladies and gentlemen, and welcome to Madison Square Garden and the World Heavyweight Boxing Championship. In this corner, weighing in at two-hundred-fifteen pounds, in the black trunks, it’s the challenger from Sweden, Ingemar Johannsen. And in this corner, weighing in at two-hundred-five pounds, in the white trunks, the heavyweight champion of the world, from the United States of America, Floyd Paterson. Hoffmann is buying a used motorcycle from his cousin.

He says, “My God, it’s so shiny, it’s like new. What’s your secret?”

His cousin says, “Well, any time it’s about to rain, I coat the chrome with a little Vaseline so it won’t tarnish. In fact, I won’t be needing this any more, here, take my tube."

Hoffmann goes to pick up his girlfriend on the motorcycle. They're going to her parents' house for dinner and he's going to meet them for the very first time.

On the way she says to him, "Listen, I have to tell you something. My family's a little strange. You can't talk during dinner. If you talk during dinner, you have to do the dishes."

He thinks, "All right."

When they go into her parents' house, not only in the kitchen, but in the dining room, the living room, on the stairs, the back porch, everywhere, there are piles and piles of dirty dishes. They haven't done the dishes in months. They sit down to eat, and the whole meal, nobody talks. During dessert, Hoffmann is getting a little horny, and he figures nobody is going to say anything, so he grabs his girlfriend and pops! her right there on the dining room table.

Nobody says nothing.

He's still a little horny, and her mother is kind of cute, so he figures, what the hell. He throws her mother up on the table and starts to do her. He's just about done with her when he looks out the window and sees it's starting to rain on his motorcycle. He reaches into his pocket and takes out the tube of Vaseline.

Her father jumps up and says, "All right, all right, I'll do the fucking dishes."

She’s stark naked, except for bikini panties. He can’t believe it. She leads him into the living room, not saying a word. She unbuckles his belt, pulls down his zipper, undoes his pants, and pulls them down to his ankles. She pulls his T-shirt up to his chest, and pulls down his underpants. She says, "Stand over me and take a shit on me."

One of the gentlemen says, "Well, Colonel, that's perfectly under*standable*, what with a huge tiger coming at you."

Two gay guys get married, and they want to have a baby, so they ask a girl to let them both make love to her, and then have the baby for them. And she agrees, because if she didn't, this joke would stop right here. Nine months later, they're in the maternity ward, and all of the babies are kicking and screaming except for one.

One of the gay guys says to the nurse, "Nurse, oh, nurse, which is our child?"

Legman goes into her room, and says, “Dear, the doctor says things are bleak. Is there anything I can do to comfort you in your last hours?”

She says, “Well, all these years we’ve been married, I’d always wished that one day you’d fuck me in the ass, but you never have. Would you please do that?”

Legman is astounded, but it’s her last request, so he figures he should do whatever she desires. Face it, he’s thrilled. So, he rolls her over, lifts her nightie, and proceeds to skewer her manure. Really stirs her lunch for her, boffs her in the potty spot for hours.

The next morning the doctor looks in on her, and he can’t believe it. She’s made an incredible rally, and is rapidly regaining her strength and her health. By noon, she’s up and walking. The doctor is flabbergasted.

He pulls Legman out into the hall and says, “My God, man, she’s like new. She’s going to live to be a hundred and twenty. What the hell did you do in there?”

Legman is a little embarrassed by the whole situation, and he says, “Well, Doc, I … I just … I just fucked her in the ass for a while.”

The doctor starts to cry uncontrollably.

Legman says, “Doc, what’s wrong?”

The doctor says, “I could have saved my father, Eleanor Roosevelt …”

Louis says, “Well, I’m a little embarrassed. I’ve got a friend who’s an undertaker, and he sells me pussies to use for bait. I put ’em on the hook, and the fish can’t resist ’em.”

Jim says, “I can understand that. But why do you sniff ’em?”

Louis says, “Well, he’s a low-life bastard, and every once in a while he slips in a few assholes.”
